Have a Coca-Cola = ¿Qué Tal?

... in Panama as in Pittsburgh ¿Qué tal? is the friendly 'What's up?' of the citizen of Panama. Equally cordial is the 'Have a Coke' of the American soldier. Around the world Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes—has become the high-sign of friendly-minded folks.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called 'Coke'.

As a MINER Sees it Seems as if the army had a good time while we were away. They threw a big dance in the gym with a new band. A little practice and they will really be OK. Seems as if half the Miners left in town got in with the help of ROTC uniforms.

I am glad to see that the military has granted permission for the use of the gym for dances. For a while it seemed as if they were going to be nasty and keep the gym only for looking at. I guess the Engineers will use it for their shindig if the military will come across with its consent.

Ex-Miner Bob Rock, physical culturalist de luxe is giving the army boys shivers with the weird exercises he dreams up. Remember the Gym Club boys? He has won the love of all the ROTC boys by diligently studying his latest Charles Atlas "Manual on Muscles" every night before his big moment of the week—P. E. Class

The Theta Taus are wondering when the devil initiation is coming off. Pity the pledges. Have you seen the bridge craze sweep over the place in its yearly cycle? This town will blaze for a few months and then like another wild wind will come pinochle. McCutchen, we are glad you spread the news of your great skating ability knee deep over the whole trip to St.
Lou. I hear that you really impressed Jean Stair with your prowess?

The Lambda Chi Harvest was the outstanding dance of the semester. The boys did things up in fine style, they really know how.
Proved however that purple passion without grain is like grape soda, no passion in it. Whoever wrote that morbid dittie? Sounds like the cross between a snore and that famous musical hit of the early twenties, Rose of Tralee.

"Landmark" Sexauer was drafted this week. We bid thee fond goodbye. You will be remembered for your additions to "Rolla Style."

from "La Boheme," (same artists as above).

meeting. The time is 7:30, in room

Miners to Have Basketball Team

Contrary to popular campus belief that there would be no varsity basketball this season Coach Mac Gladden called a general try-out scheduled to start last Monday, November 22 for members of the varsity squad, and urges all basketball material to turn up for practice. So far the school plans to have varsity basketball this year and has arranged schedules with Washington U and expects to play other St. Louis teams although the usual grudge game with St. Louis U will have to be called off this year since St. Louis has cancelled its sport program. The matter will be officially decided in a meeting of the Athletic Board taking place Tuesday at 4:00 p. m.

The team will probably be seriously short on material with only two veterans returning to the lineup. Ed Isenman will be back again this year at forward accompanied by Bob Vogt who played last year at center. Two new-coming freshmen, Bill Crain and Ronald Tappmeyer, are expected on the team and both show good promise.

Large Enough To Serve You Strong Enough To Protect You Small Enough To Know You

We know what's happening on your campus

Here's what's cooking on ours

We're very much aware of what you are doing.

It's because we are grateful that we want to tell you this.

You've never known industry—not really well. It's probably still a vague place that makes things you buy. You probably think of us as just a place aluminum comes from ... the aluminum that makes the planes you are going to work with.

But we're people—fathers and older brothers, mothers and sisters, doing the most interesting work we know.

When you come back you'll see this other side of industry. You'll see people figuring out what they can do to make a better world, and you will want to join them, doing something to make the peace rich and worth the fight.

There will be a great many things to be done. A lot of them will be done with aluminum.

Think of all the things the world is going to want in a hurry. A great deal of them will be shipped by air. So they'll be as light as possible. That's one reason why they'll be aluminum.

Millions of things are waiting for someone to make them lighter or more resistant to corrosion, brighter, prettier, cheaper.
They'll be made of aluminum, too.

None of that can start till the war's over.
But just as soon as our wartime job is done, we mean to make aluminum make a lot of jobs.

And that's what's cooking on our campus.
We're studying right now ways of making those jobs. Some of them, we hope, will be right here at Alcoa Aluminum. Still more will be in industries using aluminum for the first time. Wherever they are, they should be exciting.

A PARENTHETICAL ASIDE: FROM THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ALCOA ALUMINUM

This message is printed by Aluminum Company of America to help people to understand what we do and what sort of men make aluminum grow in usefulness.

Carrier Dodges Japs

Twin columns of smoke are all that remain of two Jap dive bombers that tried to attack U. S. Navy task force in the South Pacific. Planes were part of a force of 70 Jap planes that struck at the task force while the American planes were blasting Japs at Raboul. Note curve of carrier's wake, showing how the ship swung to dodge attacking planes. As the announcement of United States attacks on Makin and Tarawa came, it is presumed American forces landed on islands under cover of carrier planes and naval barrage. (NEA TELEPHOTO).

Air-WAC Recruiting to Get Under Way Here; U. S. Flier Describes Action

Part of an all-out, nationwide program to recruit the thousands of Air-WACs needed by the Army Air Forces to round out its present war plans, the Rolla drive got under way as Miss Helen Baysinger, local chairman of the Air-WAC committee and Lt. Dale E. Weese, captain of the traveling Air Force team announced the opening of headquarters at the Post Office, Room 213, in downtown Rolla, Thursday, December 2, 1943, and Friday, December 3, 1943.

The campaign for Air-WACs is covering the entire nation and will be conducted in every city and town of appreciable size by selected teams in order to enlist every eligible woman in the service of her country.

Women, volunteering for enlistment in the local drive will be sent at government expense to Springfield, where final qualification tests will be completed prior to actual enlistment.

Important Jobs for Women. After preliminary training to fit them for specific assignments is completed at various Air Force training posts, these women will actively take over administrative, operational, instructional, clerical, and other duties along with enlisted men and officers.

Although a great majority of the Air-WACs enlisted in the present campaign will serve in the continental United States, some will undoubtedly see overseas duty. WACs are already serving in the various theatres of the war.

The Army Air Force Team with headquarters at Springfield, Mo., was selected from various Army posts and especially trained for this program. After the completion of the recruitment program the various team members will return to their regular Air Force duties.

Small Raids Pester Nazis

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(UP)—British twin-engine Mosquito bombers raided western Germany last night for the second straight night in a follow-up to yesterday's American Flying Fortress attack on Bremen, the Reich's second port.

Intruder aircraft rounded out the night's offensive with attacks on German airfields in France and Holland, the Air Ministry announced. All planes returned safely.

The Royal Air Force's four-engined bombers remained grounded, presumably because of weather, for the third straight night, but travelers reaching Sweden said some fires still were burning in Berlin Monday from the record nine-day, 7,000-ton assault on the capital that ended Friday night.

Clare Tree Major Play Here Dec. 3 Has Lesson Against Juvenile Crime

"With juvenile crime presenting a grave and growing problem to parents and teachers today, one of our most pressing educational projects is to dramatize to young people the beauty and worth of a regard for the rights of others," says Clare Tree Major founder and director of the Children's Theatre of New York.

"That is why I consider John Ruskin's 'The King of the Golden River' as one of the most important and valuable plays in the whole Children's Theatre repertory. Graphically it shows the results of disregarding the wants and suffering of fellow human beings. If we stimulate our children to sensitiveness for the needs of others, we have gone a long way toward attaching the unimaginative callousness which produces juvenile lawbreaking today."

Although Ruskin was by no means a writer for children—"The King of the Golden River" being the only children's story he ever wrote—he would if he were alive today, probably be classed in educational circles as a progressive, Mrs. Major believes. Born a century ago, he was far ahead of his time in the development of a social awareness. He lived in an era when the finer spirits of England were beginning to revolt against the abuses which the rapid mechanization and industrialization of the age had brought about.

Particularly, in his writings, he railed against poverty in the midst of plenty—one of the battle-cries of recent years in America. So eloquent was his championship of the rights of the oppressed that some of his writings on reform were suppressed as dangerous. Today many of his ideas are commonplace, generally accepted by forwarding-looking people.

Many of them—such as the basic idea of "The King of the Golden River," which Clare Tree Major's Children's Theatre will present here on Friday, Dec. 3, at 2:30 p. m., at the Rollamo Theatre are accepted as fundamentals in the early training which all modern children should receive to fit them to become good members of our complex modern society.

The play is presented here under the auspices of the American Association of University Women (A. A. U. W.).

Tickets are on sale in each of the schools and at the Rollamo Soda Shop. Tickets for "King of the Golden River" may be bought for 50 cents. Tickets for both "King of the Golden River" and "Little Men" (March 10th) may be bought for 75 cents.
