Rape rate grows

By David Freeman
Staff Writer

Note: Rape and sexual assault are far more serious than what some people think. It may be joked about but the real thing is not a laughing matter.

According to the October 4 issue of USA Today, more than 600 rapes were reported on campuses nationwide. Those are only reported rapes. Many more are not reported and no action is taken. Fortunately, UMR reported no rapes last year. As a matter of fact, no rapes have been reported on the UMR campus in five years. This can be attributed to the small campus size and rural area but it does not mean sexual assaults have not occurred in Rolla.

In Rolla in the last five years, there have been as few reported rapes as 0 in 1987 or as many as 4 to date this year. But once again, these are only the reported ones.

According to the Missouri Criminal Code, rape is defined as "sexual intercourse by forcible compulsion." Rape is a class A felony with punishment up to 10-30 years or life in prison and a fine.

First degree sexual assault is defined as "sexual intercourse where the victim is incapacitated." This is a class C felony with punishment of up to 2-7 years in prison and fines or if the victim is injured it becomes a class B felony with punishment up to 5-15 years and fines. These punishments can be extended or diminished.

The most common form of rape is acquaintance rape. This means that the victim is assaulted by someone she knows such as a boyfriend or someone only known casually. There are, of course, attacks by unknown persons and gang rapes.

Many of the acquaintance rapes occur during or after functions involving alcohol and/or drugs. According to

Major Miner Apology

By Liz Trimble, Editor-in-Chief, and Cheryl Tefft, Managing Editor

It seems that an article of two weeks ago has been proven wrong. Not only do we have people writing and complaining about distribution; now we have people complaining about graphics. We did not intend to offend anybody. Responsibility and position were taken advantage of, and we apologize to those of you who took offense to the Homecoming layout or any of the other graphics in the September 28 issue. However, the staff is of the opinion that a little controversy is good for the Miner; it keeps us on our toes. When things run smoothly, we wonder what's wrong. Fortunately, for those of you who were offended, this situation will not happen again; the graphics artist responsible has been removed from the staff. For more on this subject, see the letters to the editor on page three.

Registration '89 begins

Submitted by Registrar's Office

Preregistration for the 1989 Winter semester is open to currently enrolled students and former students who have been accepted for readmission to the University. Students should obtain their preregistration materials from the Registrar's Office beginning October 20. Registration material is to be returned to the Registrar's Office October 20 through October 28. Students should contact their departments prior to October 20 for advising appointments. Some departments will not schedule appointments the entire week. See your department for details.

Detailed information regarding preregistration will be found in the Winter Schedule of Classes.

Due to StuCo Free Day, submissions for next week's issue of the Miner must be in the drop box by 4:30 p.m. or brought to the weekly staff meeting at 6 p.m. on Wednesday.

Tickets given for game

Submitted by Sports Information

Tickets for the UMR-Southeast Missouri football game, set for October 22 at Busch Memorial Stadium, will be available free of charge to UMR students.

Each student will be able to obtain two tickets to the game by simply showing an ID card. Tickets may be picked up at the Student Activities Office in University Center-West, starting October 10.

General public tickets may be obtained at the UMR Athletic Department for $6 each.

"This will be a rare opportunity to see the football team play in a major sports facility," said UMR Athletic Director Billy Key. "With all of the St. Louis-area students on campus, we hope our student body will take advantage of these free tickets and plan on attending the game."

Kick-off at Busch Stadium will be 1:30 p.m. on October 22.

Greenpeace moves to save kangaroos

By Scott Martin
Staff Writer

Greenpeace USA is launching a campaign they hope will eliminate the American demand for Australian kangaroo leather. The leather, used primarily in athletic shoes, is "harvested" every year in Australia under a quota system that reduced the kangaroo population by 40% to 19 million in the two short years between 1981 and 1983. Though seven species are extinct and twelve are endangered, the government quota continues to allow 3 million killings per year.

Though unable to affect Australian policies, Greenpeace hopes to reduce the killings by reducing the demand for the animals' hides. Top shoe manufacturers such as Nike, Puma, New Balance, and Adidas all use this leather in America. After a successful European campaign, all manufacturers except Adidas dropped the use of kangaroo leather. Greenpeace hopes to repeat this performance in America. With the help of public and student activism a Congressional ban could be raised to stop kangaroo imports. For more information call 202-462-1177.

Submitted by Rollamo

The 1987-88 Rollamo yearbook general distribution will be held on Tuesday, October 18, through Wednesday, October 19, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on both days. The distribution will take place from the Rollamo darkroom, which is located on the northeast corner of the Rolla Building. Yearbooks from previous years will also be available on these days.

UMR students enrolled as undergraduates in either the Fall '87 semester or the Winter '88 semester, as well as co-op students, are eligible to receive the 1987-88 yearbook.

There will also be a limited distribution of the yearbook on the two Wednesdays following the general distribution, October 26 and November 2. This limited distribution will also take place from the Rollamo darkroom and will run from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on both dates.

The Rollamo yearbook is funded through UMR's Student Activity Fees at the beginning of each fall semester. The cost is $8.50 and is paid for by the undergraduate students of UMR.

ASUM to register students to vote at the puck

Submitted by ASUM & StuCo

On November 8, 1988, we will be selecting our country's leaders for the next four years. As responsible U.S. citizens and citizens of the State of Missouri residing in Phelps County, it is our privilege and duty to participate in this year's presidential, state, and local elections. But to vote, you must be registered.

The deadline to register to vote in this fall's elections is 5 p.m. on October 19. If you can't make it to the County Clerk's office, that's okay. Student Council, in conjunction with the Associated Students of the University of Missouri and Phelps County Clerk's Office will be conducting a series of Voter Registration drives on campus and around town.

On Wednesday, October 12, ASUM and StuCo will have a voter registration booth set up near the Hockey Puck (possibly indoor due to weather). In addition, they will be conducting Voter Caravans, visiting the various residence halls and fraternity/sorority houses. If you miss any of these opportunities to register to vote, you can always drop by the ASUM office located at 206 UC-West between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2 p.m., and at the StuCo office later in the afternoon. A final push will be made to register students on Wednesday, October 19, the last day to register to vote.

If you already are registered to vote in a different county, you can pick up absentee ballot applications at these sites as well. However, we encourage you to register to vote here in Phelps County. You don't have to hassle with the paperwork, and you can have a direct influence on local politics. Transfer of registration and registration cancellation forms are readily available at any of these voter drives. So take an active part, register to vote, and VOTE!

Letters to the Editor

The controversy over graphics continues...

The pro...

Dear Editor,

Let's start with the minor (i.e. petty) complaints regarding the graphic illustrations of the September 28th issue of the Miner. The chancellor's office didn't appreciate the Pink Floyd judge, the campus police were angered by the rent-a-cop with a squirt gun, StuCo became irate over the anti-alcohol symbol and the polka-dot bow tie, the Greek girls were miffed by the flasher and the TKD Club didn't like the kick to the head. Are these people really that bored? Have they nothing worthwhile to worry about? As for me, I can't stand spinach. So I don't eat it.

And now we come to the main event: the infamous "sultry silhouette" and "bikini bottom" which caused such a furor among a few coeds.

Girls, girls, girls... "SHOCKED"? "ASTONISHED"? "A GRAVE WRONG"? "POWERFUL INFLUENCE"? Please! The words appearing in your letter last issue suggest you are easily aroused to over-reaction. You vastly over-stated the Miner's power when you cited its "far-reaching and powerful influence on the impression the population of this campus develops concerning women." Did you girls really write that with straight faces?

Give UMR students credit for having the intelligence required for an engineering curriculum. I certainly don't base my opinions on silly cartoons in a student newspaper of a tiny campus in a small, rural town. Do you?

The SUB letter of the last issue nobly stated "the Homecoming Queen competition is not a beauty contest." The "shocked and astonished" coeds left no doubt in their letter that they feel candidacy does not involve popularity or bleach. And yet, in the profile beneath the picture of Stephanie Reeder, one of two Homecoming Queen candidates who signed the letter, it is stated that because of her "personality and GOOD LOOKS she would make a great Homecoming Queen." Her "personality" and "good looks" are, of course, a matter of opinion, but according to Steph's profile they constitute qualification; such contradiction from one so protective of the "tradition and dignity behind the Homecoming Queen contest!" Having said all that, I do recognize that the bikini was an error in judgement. We all make mistakes. I'm truly sorry if the sexy shapes caused any undue indignation or insecurity.

It is gratifying, however, to see the response, albeit overblown, I am able to raise with a few pen strokes. The handful of enraged cartoon critics obviously have too much spare time on their hands. These earth-shaking pieces of satirical graphic commentary were meant only to inject some spice into a sometimes unchallenging publication. Most students have a sense of humor and, if they noticed at all, got a laugh out of the judge, rent-a-cop and StuCo "Member of the Month" as intended and appreciated the artistry. Unfortunately, some have their shorts on too tight. Lighten up! This is college; there will be plenty of time later to stick yourself in the mud. Critics might call my cartoons tasteless, but they are certainly not bland. Without them, the Miner will return to what SUB described in the September 14th issue as "generic graphics." The reader loses. To paraphrase Benjamin Franklin, a newspaper which tries to please everyone, which raises no questions or controversy, is not worth publishing. A final note: I've been informed that StuCo bow ties are NOT polka-dot! (Sorry, Matt, I didn't have a photo to go on.)

Sincerely,
Steve Munday

Dear Editor:

I have been going to UMR for a few years and I can't say that I really would like to live here or make this a permanent place of residence, but being here has taught me many things beyond textbooks and school. Rolla is not really a normal place. It is very isolated and very conservative. Not saying that this is bad, just hard on those people that have never been out of Rolla or think that Rolla is normal. I come from a big city where people are like all other people, but it amazes me every time I make it back to Rolla to find that things haven't really changed.

There are many people around here who get offended easily. Too easily. I have heard a few comments that some of the "graphics" in the last issue of the Miner were found offensive, to be blunt. Come on, let's grow up. We all know what it is like and we have all been there before. I find it hard to believe that people are not grown up enough to where they have to criticize everything that they find offensive. There is always going to be something someone doesn't like about everything. Who is to say that things are offensive or in poor taste. This isn't like we are in kindergarten any more. We can't just scream and holler about it and someone is going to come running to find out what is wrong and make it better.

Whatever was done wasn't aimed at anyone directly (it at least doesn't seem that way). It seems that people choose to interpret it offensively upon their own free will. If you don't like it that much, don't read it. No one is forcing it upon you. It was of your own free will. I sort of thought the graphics added a certain style and originality to a college campus paper, like the Miner. It sounds funny that people would get so worked up about it. Don't get me wrong. I agree that some of them and their applications might be in questionable taste, but don't forget where we are and what we are doing here. This is Rolla.

I also wonder sometimes if people just wait for something to strike them wrong so they have something to complain about. The world isn't complicated enough without someone trying to make something out of nothing that really doesn't matter. Or is it that there is nothing better to do than to insist that these people are always being taken advantage of and they feel it is their right to voice their opinions and demand retribution?

In this respect, I feel sorry for Rolla and the University. But in time, Rolla will grow up, too, and be able to live life like it is everywhere else.

ψ A few, doing time in Rolla

... And the con

Dear Editor,

Congratulations! Thanks to your last few issues, you have finally aroused a few of us to go to our word processors and contribute to our school tabloid. Let us first present several "problem areas," and then we will propose two short-term and one long-term "opportunity windows" for your consideration.

We have identified three aggravating problem areas.

The first problem is the lack of quality and poor content of the graphics, which hopefully reached a low extreme in the September 28, 1988 issue. Mr. Steve Munday seems to be perhaps 20 years past his prime. The graphics on the front page seem to depict the Chancellor's Office as an unfriendly, tyrannical "Establishment," and the campus police department as weapon-wielding thugs ("pigs"?). The "border" on pages 8-9 and graphics on page 14 leave no doubt in any person's mind that the Homecoming Queen ritual at UMR is only a contest of sex appeal. If the Chinese proverb about a picture being worth a thousand words is true, Mr. Munday should move straight away to his own word processor!

The second problem area is the lack of journalistic ability on the part of some of your contributors. In particular, the language and style of the articles dealing with IFC-Board rivalry seem to have a rather low quality standard.

The third problem area is the apparent reserved attitude on the part of the Miner's editorial staff when it comes time to cut articles and tell the reporters and contributors to clean up their acts. The lack of quality and effort on the part of several of the contributors does not relieve the editors of their responsibility to turn out a quality newspaper.

Now for the "windows of opportunity" to which we referred earlier.

The first short-term window is to improve the graphics department. This can be done by having a "pep talk" with Mr. Munday, replacing him with a "Doonesbury" column, or just going to a "no graphics" approach.

The second short-term window is to purchase a pack of red pens and several pairs of scissors and distribute them to the various editors. An open attitude of change and challenge on the Miner staff could bring a little perestroika even to Rolla.

The long-term window of opportunity may seriously be considered by Chancellor Jischke and Dean Barker in the College of Arts and Sciences: not unlike the "UMR London Program" where UMR students can spend a semester of study in England and earn credit, we could host a "UMC Rolla Program" where several of the journalism majors at UMC could come to Rolla and, among other things, work on the Miner editorial staff for credits at UMC. This window could bring in a nice breath of fresh air.

Sincerely,
Dave Wyrick

Steve Raper
Graduate Students
Engineering Management

Editor's Response:

You present a good argument in your letter. As to the first short-term window, Mr. Munday was removed from the Miner staff on October 3rd. For your second "window," we feel that the overall attitude of the staff is open. We are from a variety of backgrounds and have a variety of interests. As to your long-term window, you make a point. UMC has journalism majors. UMR has engineering majors. All of us on the staff are full-time students, none of whom are majoring in journalism. Perhaps you would like to join our staff. Your letter is a fine example of journalistic ability. Having heard numerous complaints on this subject since the printing of the September 28 issue, we certainly appreciate the humorous and helpful tone of your letter.

Dear Editor,

In response to the Missouri Miner of September 28, 1988, I would like to express my feelings about the graphics used.

Being a student of UMR and also a woman, I do not appreciate the "Playboy" graphics with which the Miner dealt with the Homecoming Queen event of this year. The Miner is THE source of information for the general student body, and the image of UMR presented to the world.

Homecoming Queen candidacy is a privilege and honor which many young women desire in their scholastic career. My opportunity was met, by my family and friends, with pride. The memory is a precious one.

For these ladies of UMR, the Missouri Miner has reduced this wonderful experience to a degrading sexual contest. I am extremely ashamed of the blatant disregard for morality and decency represented by those graphics. Some of my friends are among the candidates and I am embarrassed for them and their families. I do not believe that you asked the candidates, whose lives and reputations are at stake, if they cared to be associated with those graphics.

Why can't the "gentlemen" of UMR treat the ladies of UMR with the respect due a fellow student, colleague, and human being?

Roman Holiday: In search of a suitcase

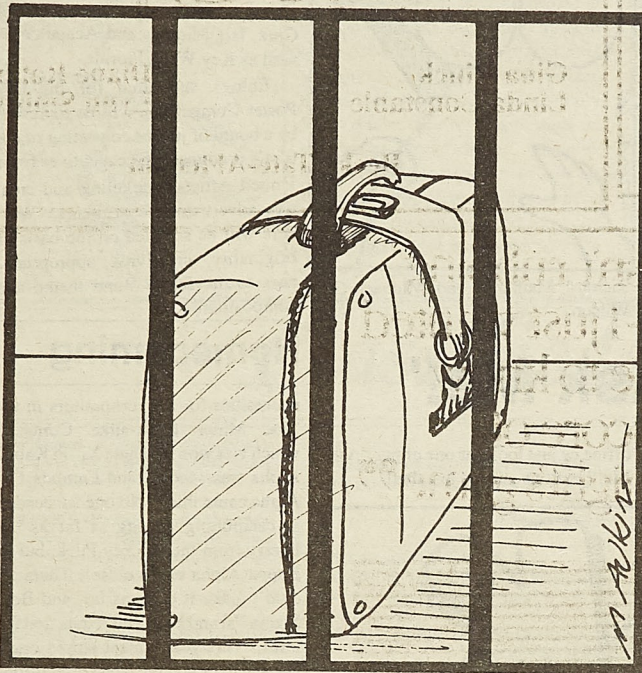

By Nora Okong'o
Staff Writer

Previously: "Their sinister plot to rob Pete, Bill and Tim foiled, Carletta and Fredrico follow them, hiring Juan to do their dirty work..."

"These Spanish prisons!" Bill grumbled.

He hated the waiting, the inactivity, his inability to do anything. They had already called the American embassy in Madrid. An embassy official was on his way, they were told. That had been over an hour ago. Fortunately, the police had let Tim out of his cell, allowing the three friends to try to formulate a plan of action. They were not succeeding. Juan was arguing vehemently, or so it sounded, in double-spaced Spanish, apparently insisting that since the suitcase was his, he should have it. Tim had given up trying to convince them to open it so that he could prove it was actually his.

Suddenly, the room was quiet. Juan was talking softly into the phone. Pete was staring at the blank wall ahead, Tim at the ceiling, Bill at the floor. The policemen were scribbling away. For an instant, it seemed that the suitcase didn't matter any more. No one paid much heed to the young man who walked in toward the policemen at the counter. No one paid much heed when he left. Juan had finished his phone call. It hadn't gone well. You could tell from the scowl on his face.

"Mama mia!" he exclaimed, and lapsed into a series of more expressive Spanish expressions.

Everyone looked at him as though he had gone mad. He hadn't; the suitcase was gone. Fredrico would kill him for sure. One of the policemen, slightly older with greying hair and moustache, shrugged his shoulders.

"Forget it," he said casually. "You can go," he waved the three young men out.

Tim stared at him incredulously. "You mean you're not going to look for my suitcase!"

"Who knows where it is?" the policeman said nonchalantly.

Tim was more amazed than Juan.

"You're not going to look for it? I'll call the mayor, the secret police—I'll have you fired!"

"Sorry," the policeman said. "Who knows where it is?" he repeated.

They weren't going to get anywhere with him. Tim, Pete and Bill left dejectedly, followed by an angry—and scared—Juan.

Luke Peterson, this week's Student Council Member of the Week, is the Chairman of the Student Fees and Housing Rates Committee. Luke has been spending his time investigating the Engineering Fees, Housing and Food rates, as well as studying the overall fees of UMR. He has also been gathering pertinent financial information of other engineering campuses and comparing them with UMR's rates. He will have a report on his findings at the end of the year to be viewed by the campus. Homecoming results revealed

By Nora Okong'o
Staff Writer

This year's theme is "Days of Old and Future Gold," which is why we once again had an activity-filled Homecoming week.

Monday's highlight was the comedy performance of Joe Marlotti and Michael A. Smith. Michael says he enjoys talking about the "illogical things in an illogical world," which his audience may take to be a reference to St. Louis drivers. Joe discussed topics ranging from golf to dates to rock stars. The two comedians' repertoire on "life" certainly struck a chord with students, who provided enthusiastic support.

Also on Monday night was the lamp-lighting ceremony, which heralded the beginning of the Homecoming festivities. The Queen candidates were introduced to the audience—those brave folks who were undeterred by the fifty-degree chill.

Then there were the Homecoming games. These were held throughout the week on the campus mall. Unusual instruments featured were kitchen appliances, which captured Beta Sigma Psi first place in this contest. Alpha Epsilon Pi was second with a one-string guitar, followed by the guy from Pi Kappa Alpha who "jingled" his tongue. Slide-rule and hat were

The twentieth night of September snuck quietly into town, unnoticed, drifting in on a cool breeze from St. James. It was time. With still subtlety came this darkling eve, hastening the sun's rear guard to reveal the lights of Pine Street. Time to go. A restful peace enveloped the sleepy campus as shadows crept from the glowing face of the library and melted across the recently watered grass. Now it was past time to go and I was late, late for the TAU BETA PI SMOKER.

I casually raced to the chemistry building, only to find the meeting had been moved to ME 104. Finally in the right auditorium, showered with the golden oratory of President Jeff

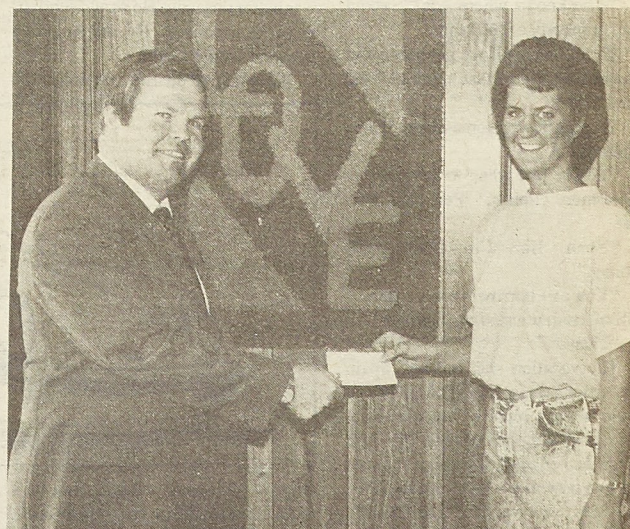

Moore and a guest speaker, I and the other Tau Beta Pi electees wondered why we had been summoned. Sure, we knew the basics—Tau Beta Pi, exclusive engineering honor society of the upwardly mobile UMR upper-classman, full of intelligent, motivated people, offering plenty of opportunity for leadership and service, a definite resume booster—but what did it all mean? We soon found out (i.e. memorized) the purpose of Tau Beta Pi: "...to mark in a fitting manner those who have conferred honor upon their Alma Mater by distinguished scholarship and exemplary character as engineering students...and to foster a spirit of liberal culture in engineering colleges." Obviously my name had been selected as a result of clerical error, but I wasn't telling. A sequence of events quickly became apparent.

On September 6, amidst the last warm whispers of summer, the members had gathered unbeknownst to us to introduce officers, distribute invitations and, the clincher, to stress the theme of the new school year: MEMBERSHIP INVOLVEMENT. And then came the news: we electees were to be drilled on Tau Beta Pi, engineering ethics and the history of UMR (the good old days when freshmen were painted green). We were certainly thrilled by the prospect of another test.

The quiz came and went on the night of October 4th. That evening our James Bond, 007, key to artists' future?

Source: United Artists

Art and graphic design students at colleges and universities nationwide will set out to prove that "nobody does it better" as they vie for the chance to have their original artwork considered as the basis for the multi-million dollar advertising campaign for Licence Revoked, United Artists Pictures' all-new James Bond action-adventure film starring Timothy Dalton. Licence Revoked is scheduled for national release in the summer of 1989.

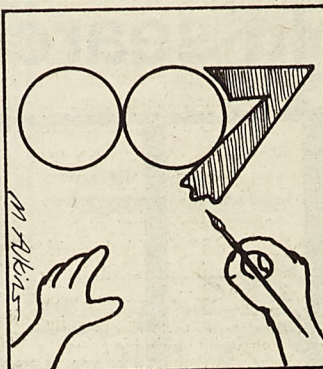

Sponsored by United Artists, the Hollywood studio that has released each of the fifteen previous Bond films, the 007 Poster Competition will award cash scholarships to the first, second and third place winners and special private screenings of Licence Revoked to the winners' school. All entrants will receive a copy of the film's official one-sheet poster and a complimentary pair of tickets to see Licence Revoked.

In Licence Revoked, famed agent 007 meets his greatest challenge to date when he becomes embroiled in a personal mission of vengeance against the tyrannical Latin American drug lord Franz Sanchez (portrayed by Robert Davi) and must leave the British Secret Service.

Produced by Albert R. Broccoli and Michael G. Wilson through Danjaq S.A., Licence Revoked will be directed by four-time Bond veteran

John Glen from a screenplay by Michael G. Wilson based on a story by Richard Maibaum and Michael G. Wilson.

The latest chapter in the most successful motion picture series in history, Licence Revoked began principal photography at Mexico City's Churubusco Studios on July 18 and includes additional location shooting in Mexicali, Durango, Vera Cruz, Isla Mujeres and Acapulco as well as Key West, Florida.

Entries submitted for the 007 Poster Competition will be reviewed by a board of judges consisting of the film's producers and executives from United Artists' marketing and creative advertising departments. Winners will be selected on the basis of originality, creativity, appropriateness to the James Bond theme and composition.

All entries must be completed artwork, including copy, and be no smaller than 15" x 20". Entries can be in the form of illustrations, photograph layouts, paintings or drawings in full color or black and white. Rough sketches are not acceptable. Entries must be postmarked by December 15, 1988 and received by December 31, 1988.

For additional information and full contest rules, interested students should contact either their Art Department chairperson or SpringGreene Marketing Associates, 110 Greene Street, Suite 801, New York City, NY 10012.

StuCo asks you to 'Ask Me!'

Submitted by Bob Phillips
Vice President of Internal Affairs

Have you noticed the fluorescent green "Ask Me!" buttons on book bags and backpacks around campus? If you haven't also noticed, the same bright "Ask Me!" symbol has appeared in the Student Council glass case and on various banners hung by StuCo.

Student Council is making a tremendous effort to see that you are informed before we make decisions, and we want to get your input on the issues that affect you. Your first and best means of having your ideas heard is through any one of the terrific representatives to the Student Council. And, if you have any questions or ideas about the new proposed banner wall, the possibility of having a Student-Run Club, about the committee investigating student fees, or about any other service that StuCo provides or should provide, come by the StuCo office or just look for one of our "Ask Me!" buttons and do just that!

Holiday

As soon as they had left, the two policemen burst into laughter.

"Who knows where it is?" asked one, in parody of the other.

"I can't wait till we get home and find out what's in that suitcase," the other said.

They guffawed some more. It was a good joke.

"You're just going to have to buy some more clothes," Pete said, outside.

"Yeah, like I'm floating in money."

"You can borrow some of mine," Bill offered, unusually generous.

"Thanks."

The vacation was ruined. Spain was no longer magical. The clothes he could always replace, but never the souvenirs, the photographs, the little things he had carried without evaluating just how much they meant... They had three more weeks of Spain, but the incident was almost as bad as leaving home without money.

Juan was already packing. Brazil was as good a place as any to disappear in, he supposed, even though they didn't speak Spanish there. He hated to leave Angelina and the kids, but it was better this way. He would send for them, he promised. He and Angelina knew he would never.

Carletta had packed and was at the Fredrico put down the phone slowly. His customers were getting to him. The bomb was to have been delivered two days ago—where was it? He didn't know.

In an apartment in Madrid, they they let him keep it.

"Alfredo, come here!" his mother called.

She wished his father hadn't brought him that big toy car. It was airport. She didn't know how she would face Fredrico, but she knew she must. To run was futile. Juan had bungled the job. She had sent for Juan, therefore she had bungled. Fredrico might kill her, then again, he might not.

unpacked Tim's case. Slightly disappointed, for they found only clothes, most of them not very fashionable, new or expensive at that. They would not fetch much on the secondhand market. Then there was the big toy car. The little boy was delighted with it, so expensive. Even worse, the little boy played with it everywhere, even here in the bank, where everyone was watching. The security guard, trying to be discreet, was eyeing mother and child suspiciously. She wanted to run after Alfredo.

"May I help you?" the teller asked impatiently.

"Yes," she replied hastily, and pulled out her pay cheque.

Across the room, the toy car had stalled. Alfredo sat wailing beside it. The guard walked impatiently to him. He picked up the car as Alfredo continued his howling and fiddled with it.

Alfredo's mother looked anxiously in their direction. Everything seemed all right. Suddenly, the guard fumbled and dropped the car. It was the last thing he ever did. The car-bomb explosion was followed by deathly silence then, total anarchy.

Two hours later, from Rome, the Liberation Front claimed responsibility for the bomb-blast.

In a hotel room in Madrid, watching the telecast, Tim said, "I sure wonder how they got such a powerful bomb in there. Especially with all those cameras and guards."

Bill said, "I wonder why they did it. It was so senseless."

Pete said, "I guess we'll never know."

necessities for the competitors in the "Joe Miner Look-alike Contest," which was won by Theta Xi. Pi Kappa Alpha was second, and Lambda Chi Alpha came third. No one succeeded in catapulting an egg as far as the library from the Hockey Puck, but Pi Kappa Alpha came close. Theta Xi didn't make it quite as far, and Beta Sigma Psi and Zeta Tau Alpha tied for third. This year's most stupid engineering trick was the latest revolutionary breakthrough in wake-up technology, Beta Sigma Psi's "pull-out-the bed". Not nearly as stupidly intelligent were Theta Xi and Chi Omega. The Scavenger Hunt ended on Thursday, with Pi Kappa Alpha taking yet another first place. Other "scavengers" who placed were GDI, Alpha Epsilon Pi and Zeta Tau Alpha.

See you again next year, for the "future gold"!

future became clear: on the 11th day of the tenth month, 1988 anno domini, the Tau Beta Pi members will assemble and vote on the fate of the electees. To the survivors of this democratic gauntlet go the spoils of acceptance: a picnic at Shuman Park on the afternoon of the 21st followed that night by a bent polishing (God knows my bent needs it) and make-up quiz. And, of course, all meetings are topped with food, drink, and merriment (donuts and Coke, a true sugar high).

The quiz was over. Electees were busily signing up for committees and paying fees. Chemistry G3 was slowly emptying. I walked into the chilling dark, drawing my collar close around my neck, smiling through the shadowy haze, almost sure of a 60%.

Miners Impressive in victory over SBU

Ron Reimer breaks into open field for a long gain against SBU during the Miners 31-20 win over Southwest Baptist (above). Ron Harmon almost broke for a TD but was finally dragged down (right).

By Babu Barat
Staff Writer

Three cheers for the UMR Football team!!! This past weekend was the game that hopefully marked the end of an 0-4 record for the Football Miners.

The stadium was packed with the UMR Homecoming crowd, all hoping that their football team could put all its troubles in the past and win this one; for the weekend would not be the same if the team was to lose since many of the Homecoming activities revolved around the football game.

The Football Miners had no intentions of letting anybody down, and gave the home crowd a lot to cheer about as they recorded a 31-20 victory over Southwest Baptist; the first win this season bringing them to 1-4, 1-0 in the MIAA.

The Miners seemed to be a different team than that of weeks passed. They looked more powerful and executed very well. They key was that they made very few mistakes; mistakes have hampered this football team from the inset of the season.

The Miners capitalized on their first possession, marching the ball down the field for a touchdown. Eventhough Southwest Baptist did the same, they failed to score on a two point conversion attempt. Thus, giving the Miners a 7-6 advantage, a lead that would not be relinquished for the remainder of the game.

Mark Paris, having one of his better days, led the Miners with two touchdown runs of 1 and 5 yards. However, all the credit cannot be given to one individual. The entire team looked very impressive throughout the game. The defense played just as well as the offense, keeping Southwest Baptist out of the end zone until the end of the game.

If the Miners can continue to improve at the rate they did between the fourth loss they had and the Southwest Baptist game, they should be able to look forward to good things for the rest of the season. Many crucial conference games remain for the team this season, with the majority being played away from home. If the UMR Football team wins the rest of their games they will still be able to win the conference title. This weekend the Miners will be on the road playing Central Missouri in another MIAA game. Gametime is 1:30 p.m.

SEMO scores late for tie

By Danny Giblin
Staff Writer

The mens soccer team took on SEMO last Friday night in an MIAA conference game. Southeast came out strong and scored the first goal of the match on a long shot that caught everyone by surprise. The Miners came right back. Mike Balassi took a pass from Jeff Schaefer and knotted the score at 1-1. Numerous scoring chances were missed by the Miners so the teams went into the half tied. Unfortunately, the second half of the game was just like the first. UMR clearly outplayed their opponents but could not put the ball into the back of the net. Thus, the teams went into overtime still tied 1-1.

The first overtime period saw UMR jump out on top with a goal by Steve Campbell as he dribbled in and around the goalie to score. SEMO came back and scored with about 30

The team came back against Westminster last Monday. In the first half there were many scoring opportunities, but only one was capitalized on. Tim Chojnacki received a pass from Eric Hauser and put the Miners in front 1-0.

The second half went extremely well for the team as they scored virtually at will. Kurt O'Brien intercepted a pass meant for the Westminster goalkeeper and fed Eric Hauser for an easy goal. A few minutes later "Whitey" scored a goal of his own off of a rebound. The Miners kept the pressure up as Tim Koscielski dribbled through the defense and tucked the ball into the back of the net. The scoring started to pick up even more after this goal. Eric Hauser sent a corner kick to Steve Campbell who put the ball away for a 5-0 lead. Two minutes later "Whitey" sent a ball to Steve who scored his second goal of the game. "Whitey" then set up Bob Schneider for the seventh tally of the match. Steve Campbell rounded out the scoring with six minutes left. He took a pass from Kenny Stecker to notch the first hat trick of the year by any of the Miners. The final

The Miners beat Westminster last Monday, scoring almost at will.

Intramurals still going strong

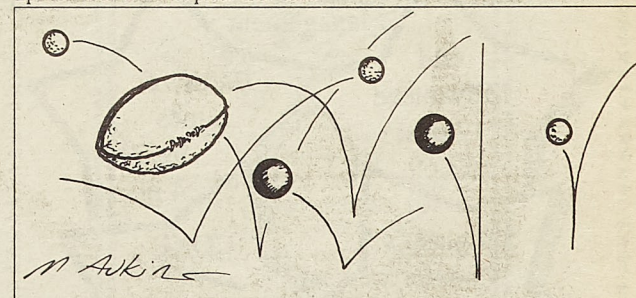

By Kurt Bruemmer
Staff Writer

The Intramural football season came to a close last week with Alpha Omega slipping by Kappa Alpha Psi earning themselves the Division II title. In doing so, Alpha Omega was named Team of the Week. In the third place game, Sigma Tau Gamma defeated RHA.

In Division I football, Sigma Phi Epsilon took the first place title once Alpha Omega leading the pack. They were followed by Pikes and Sig Ep tied for second, Phi Kap fourth, and Kappa Alpha fifth.

Bob Homer of TJ-South won the singles Racquetball title beating Kim Thien of Air Force ROTC in the final with an impressive performance. His domination of the competition earned him Intramural Athlete of the Week honors. TJ-North's team took the doubles tournament title again by beating Sigma Nu in the final. Sig Ep, led by quarterback Mike Steagall, ended the season with a perfect record winning all nine of their games this season. In the third place game, TKE beat Beta Sigma Psi.

In the final golf results, it was with Kappa Sigma coming in second.

There has been a change in the Intramural schedule for the semester. The starting date for volleyball has been moved back to Monday, October 17, and soccer has been moved to the Monday after that, October 24.

was 8-0.

The men took on UMSL on the Friday night of Homecoming in another conference game. A large crowd attended the game to cheer on the team. UMSL jumped out on top scoring off a corner kick 10 minutes into the game. The half was evenly played. Tim Koscielski tied the game when he punched home a loose ball from a free kick.

The second half started poorly. Less than 2 minutes in UMSL scored on a play that appeared to be offside. When UMR ballboy Tim Owens heard that the goal was allowed he said, "Damn, that's stupid!"

UMSL finished the scoring using a quick restart from a free kick, and then chipping the ball over the keeper. The final score was 3-1, with UMSL coming out on top. This dropped the Miners record to 7-5-1 overall.

If for some reason you haven't come out to support the team, there are only two home games left this season. The Miners next challenge is Thursday evening at 7:30 against Missouri Southern.

The Miners have been doing very well in the past few games with great team efforts. Kurt Obrien (below) tries to get past his Westminster opponent during the game last Monday. The Miners scored very easily in the second half. The Miners set up a score with good passing (below).

Baseball down to three

By Jim Reed
Sports Editor

The American League Championship series ended Sunday before the Boston Red Sox knew what happened. Oakland sweep them in four straight, not only with powerfull offense, of which they had plenty, but also with excellencnt pitching.

Dennis Eckersley, who has been kecked around the leagues the past few years seems to have fund his place as a stopper for the A's. He finished the year with 45 saves and saved every game of the LCS. Dave Stewart also pitched well gaining his second win Sunday night.

As for the powerfull offense, the A's got runs from everyone in the lineup, not just relying on the bug names of Henderson, Consesco, McQuire, and Parker.

Moving over to the National League, the only real contest, the Dodgers are surprising everyone while taking a 3-2 game lead into the game Tuesday night.

They have totally relied on Oral Hurchisser who has started two games and got a save in a third. He finally got some support from the team when Kurk Gibson started hitting. He has two homers in the series. The bad news is that he came up limping after stealing second in Mondays game. The New York crowd showed their very poor sportsmanship and laque of common decency by cheering the injury.

The Dodgers look good going home to finish up the series but Oakland is going to be very tough to stop.

Order of the Sun leads womens Intramurals

By Jim Reed
Sports Editor

Its half way through the semester and ladies intramurals is still up in the air with six contenders. The top four places are filled with the top four finishers in intramural football. Those finishes allowed RHA to move ahead of ZTA and TJHA for fourth.

Speaking of RHA, this past weeks Athlete of the week went to Melissa Krolak of RHA who took first place in racquetball, and was the quarterback for the football team.

The team of the week honors went to The Little Sigmas of Sigma Chi who came from behind to beat Chi Omega and then went on to win first place in football.

Other important points comming up include swimming and tennis, and other sports will be starting soon. The door is still open for any of the top six teams, and if some of the others came to life they might be able to catch up so go out and support your organization.

Homecoming football game in action

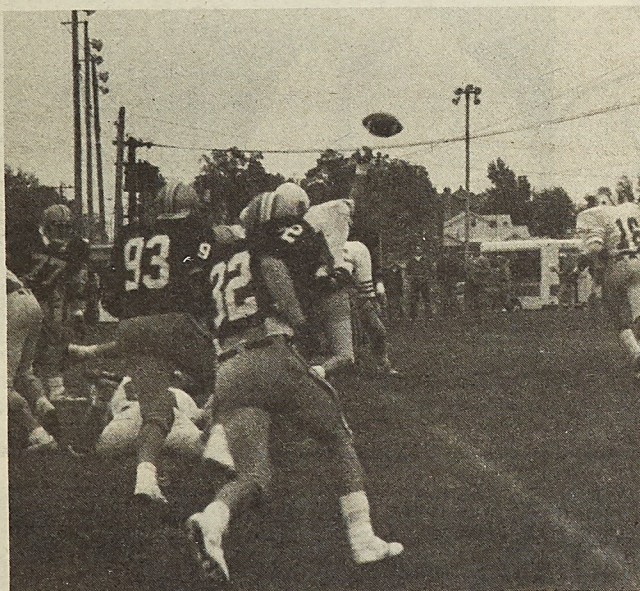

The Miners had a very good controlled drive that they finished off with a TD (left). The offensive line was able to control the defense all the second half. The defense also did its part by causing turnovers. Mike Swinford recovered a fumble (middle). The defense didn't allow any big plays in the first half but they allowed them to get a few key plays in the second half that led to scores. By this time though, the game was out of reach for the Bear Cats.

DEPRESSION/Awareness.

Recognition, Treatment

NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF MENTAL HEALTH

Depressive disorders are increasing among this country's teenagers. Many young people, whose symptoms are chalked up to the "normal adjustments" of adolescence, do not get the help they need. Some become so despairing—believing their problems insoluble—that they try to kill themselves, and unfortunately some actually do. During the past three decades, suicide among adolescents has increased 300 percent.

While not the only cause of suicide, depression is always the cause of much pain. That is why the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) is providing information on adolescent depression as part of a national education campaign called project D/ART (Depression Awareness, Recognition and Treatment). Dr. Frank Sullivan, Acting Director of NIMH, would like everyone to recognize the symptoms of depression so that those who are suffering can get the help they need. Treatment can save a great deal of pain. It may even save a life.

Some symptoms of adolescent depression are the same as those for depression in other age groups:

- feelings of sadness
- helplessness
- hopelessness
- guilt
- loss of confidence
- self-esteem
- changes in sleeping and eating habits.
- loss of interest in usual activities

In addition, depressed adolescents often "act out." That is, they try to "cover" their depression by acting angry, aggressive, running away, becoming delinquent or abusing drugs or alcohol. Feelings of loneliness, emptiness and lack of social support are also common.

The key to recognizing depression in a teenager is that the change in behavior lasts for weeks. In fact, any youngster who has four or more of the above symptoms for more than a few weeks or who is doing poorly in school, seems socially withdrawn, uncaring, and no longer interested in activities once enjoyed should be checked for a possible depressive illness.

As a first step, youngsters should visit the family doctor, clinic, or health maintenance organization to rule out other illnesses. If the doctor finds the youngster is depressed, he or she may treat the depression or refer the teenager to a mental health specialist. Referral can also be received by calling your local Mental Health Association or community mental health center. For further information about D/ART and where to get help, write to NIMH-D/ART, Public Inquiries, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20857.

Experience gained through membership in ASHRAE

Submitted by Dave Pollman
Secretary and Treasurer of
A.S.H.R.A.E.

A.S.H.R.A.E. is The American Society of Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Engineers. This semester is the start of a new campaign to educate the engineering student to the advantages and experience which can be gained through a membership in ASHRAE. The importance of this society stems not only to upper level engineering students, but even more so to the freshman and sophomores interested in designing, construction, operation or maintaining systems used to control the indoor environment in buildings.

Each month the student branch features a new guest speaker. Topics which are discussed at the meetings cover a wide range of subjects including sales, marketing, manufacturing, and applications common in the field of Heating, Ventilating and Air Conditioning (HVAC). For the entry level engineering student these lecture will provide advice from practicing engineers, and help to shape the course of study you will pursue in the near future.

Tours, scheduled by the student branch, are carried out both on and off campus with the intention of exposing the student to real life work situations. These tours not only focus on the applications of HVAC, but also show the student some of the systems they will be studying in the future or may have already studied.

Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning have long been disciplines in the field of Mechanical Engineering. There are several courses here at Rolla which should be given a great deal of consideration even if HVAC is not primarily your field of interest. These courses include ME 275 Environmental Control, ME 375 Mechanical Equipment for Environmental Control, ME 367 Refrigeration and Heat Pump Systems, and ME 373 Thermal System Analysis.

These courses address the creation and maintenance of an acceptable indoor air environment and present methods for preserving indoor air quality. In addition, the equipment which is required to achieve this goal are examined and analyzed as well as techniques for annual energy estimation. All of these considerations are necessary for designing satisfactory building environment control systems, where people spend a majority of their time.

It is the objective of the student branch officers to involve a great deal more of the entry level students in active participation in the building of their futures, through ASHRAE. Each semester officer elections are held to fill the positions of president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer.

All students are politically active

Submitted by ASUM

Politics. Some people think of corruption and other evil connotations. Yet others don't really know or care. But it's part of our lives, something we deal with on a daily basis. Whether you know it or not, agree with it or not, or simply don't care, as students of the University of Missouri-Rolla, you are actively involved in politics.

Did you realize that you are a member of a political Special Interest Group? And did you know that you are a dues-paying member? In fact, every student of the University of Missouri-

Rolla or Columbia campuses falls into this category. ASUM, the Associated Students of the University of Missouri, is a student-funded, student-operated, student-servicing special interest group. Headquartered in Columbia with a branch office here in Rolla, we are here to service your needs and interests on a state-wide political level. As a member, you are entitled to some benefits which include participation in our lunch with a legislator program, voter registration drives, and our political intern program.

Information on any of these programs and other ASUM activities can be received by inquiring at our office located at 206 University Center-West. We are looking for interested volunteers to help with our schedule of programs for this semester and next. If you would like to take an active participation in state government, are interested in politics, or are simply curious what your dues are going toward, come and inquire. We'd be more than happy to answer any questions you may have. In fact, we encourage it!

StuCo Open Forum held

Submitted by Randy Barton
StuCo Rep

Student Council is giving you a chance, once again, to speak out and be heard. StuCo is genuinely interested in hearing what the students of UMR have to say. Without input from the students, StuCo representatives have no idea what to do about issues that concern the whole student body. Help them to do what they can to help you.

Students will have a chance to meet the council face-to-face and discuss current issues and ask questions about the happenings around the campus. There will be an Open Forum on October 12 at 6:30 in Centennial Hall in the University Center-East for the main purpose of discussing the current referendum concerning Student Activity Fees.

Students are currently being asked to vote in the referendum and state their preferences about the increasing of Student Activity Fees for the 1989-90 school year. Ballots may be obtained from Student Council members and should be turned in to them also. Students should indicate the amount of increase or decrease in funds they think each organization should get. Take the time to make your opinions known. YOUR VOTE COUNTS! If you have questions about the referendum or other matters, see your StuCo rep and come to the Open Forum. Don't be afraid to ask.

If the idea of meeting state-wide legislators and spending some time in Jefferson City lobbying for student issues is something that tickles your curiosity, ASUM has the opportunity of a lifetime. Our political intern program, unique to the U.S. in that it combines lobbying experience with actual academic credit, is an excellent opportunity for you to become involved!

Our political interns spend a semester lobbying in Jefferson City, speaking before committee hearings, approaching state legislators to confirm support for a student issue, and receiving credit for it. The only requirements are that you are of sophomore standing when you take the internship, have a 2.8 GPA, and have an active interest in state-wide politics. A total of 9 hours of political science credit from the University of Missouri-Columbia with an option to take three more of your choice is the academic credit you would receive from this program. If you would like to spend a semester in Columbia, or happen to have your home in Columbia, this is an excellent opportunity to receive some political science credit while gaining invaluable insight and experience on the political structure at the state level.

Political interns for the '89 legislative session are being selected. If you don't hurry, it may be too late. Or if next semester seems too hasty, you can still get some information and consider participating the following year. General information and application forms are available at the ASUM office, 206 UC-West. We're looking for interested individuals willing to make a difference. If that's you, we'd like to meet you!

a 1988 Association of American Colleges study of gang rapes. "Those substances are not the direct cause. But their mood-altering effects apparently help to set the stage by reducing men's inhibitions and helping them excuse or rationalize abusive behavior. It weakens a woman's ability to assess dangerous situations, and diminishes her capacity to take effective steps to safeguard herself." (Ehrhart and Sandler, 1985)

There is no way to completely cover this topic in any length of paper and there is no way to be completely null of the situation. It cannot always be said that "it will happen to someone else" because you may be that someone else. Also, the highest statistic is the fact that 9 out of 10 rapes are not reported. Many statistics are not given in this report, but the numbers are there for almost any situation possible.

A closing note: Much of the information from this article was obtained from Lt. Watson and Sgt. Pikka of the Rolla Police Department, Pat Ordovensky, "Crime on Campus," USA Today, Vol. 7, No. 14, October 4, 1988, and "Sexual Assault on Campus: What Colleges Can Do," by Aileen Adams and Gail Abernethy, 1988 Rape Treatment Center, Santa Monica Hospital Medical Center.
